CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20505

Dear I would like to solicit your help in our continuing efforts to improve the quality of CIA analysis on South Asia. The Agency's National Foreign Assessment Center is looking for additional analysts with graduate training in South Asian studies for its office of Near East and South Asia Analysis. We have openings for men and women interested in contemporary political, economic, social, and military affairs. The positions require strong analytical skills and the ability to write straightforward prose and to brief senior officials. US citizenship is a requirement. Applicants must pass medical and rigorous security screenings. The positions are in the Washington, D. C. area. Our analysts are open employees of the CIA. A graduate degreeor degreesis highly desirable. Salary is negotiable, with factors such as education, training, work experience, language skills, etc., being taken into account. We normally hire a new Ph.D. with limited teaching experience at the GS-11 levelabout $23,500 with this year's cost of living increase.	I would like to solicit your help in our continuing efforts to improve the quality of CIA analysis on South Asia. The Agency's National Foreign Assessment Center is looking for additional analysts with graduate training in South Asian studies for its office of Near East and South Asia Analysis. We have openings for men and women interested in contemporary political, economic, social, and military affairs. The positions require strong analytical skills and the ability to write straightforward prose and to brief senior officials. Us citizenship is a requirement. Applicants must pass medical and rigorous security screenings. The positions are in the Washington, D. C. area. Our analysts are open employees of the CIA. A graduate degree—or degrees—is highly desirable. Salary is negotiable, with factors such as education, training, work experience, language skills, etc., being taken into account. We normally hire a new Ph.D. with limited teaching experience at the GS-11 level—about $23,500 with this year's		15 October 1981
I would like to solicit your help in our continuing efforts to improve the quality of CIA analysis on South Asia. The Agency's National Foreign Assessment Center is looking for additional analysts with graduate training in South Asian studies for its office of Near East and South Asia Analysis. We have openings for men and women interested in contemporary political, economic, social, and military affairs. The positions require strong analytical skills and the ability to write straightforward prose and to brief senior officials. Us citizenship is a requirement. Applicants must pass medical and rigorous security screenings. The positions are in the Washington, D. C. area. Our analysts are open employees of the CIA. A graduate degree—or degrees—is highly desirable. Salary is negotiable, with factors such as education, training, work experience, language skills, etc., being taken into account. We normally hire a new Ph.D. with limited teaching experience at the GS-11 level—about $23,500 with this year's	I would like to solicit your help in our continuing efforts to improve the quality of CIA analysis on South Asia. The Agency's National Foreign Assessment Center is looking for additional analysts with graduate training in South Asian studies for its office of Near East and South Asia Analysis. We have openings for men and women interested in contemporary political, economic, social, and military affairs. The positions require strong analytical skills and the ability to write straightforward prose and to brief senior officials. Us citizenship is a requirement. Applicants must pass medical and rigorous security screenings. The positions are in the Washington, D. C. area. Our analysts are open employees of the CIA. A graduate degree—or degrees—is highly desirable. Salary is negotiable, with factors such as education, training, work experience, language skills, etc., being taken into account. We normally hire a new Ph.D. with limited teaching experience at the GS-11 level—about $23,500 with this year's
I would like to solicit your help in our continuing efforts to improve the quality of CIA analysis on South Asia. The Agency's National Foreign Assessment Center is looking for additional analysts with graduate training in South Asian studies for its office of Near East and South Asia Analysis. We have openings for men and women interested in contemporary political, economic, social, and military affairs. The positions require strong analytical skills and the ability to write straightforward prose and to brief senior officials. Us citizenship is a requirement. Applicants must pass medical and rigorous security screenings. The positions are in the Washington, D. C. area. Our analysts are open employees of the CIA. A graduate degree—or degrees—is highly desirable. Salary is negotiable, with factors such as education, training, work experience, language skills, etc., being taken into account. We normally hire a new Ph.D. with limited teaching experience at the GS-11 level—about $23,500 with this year's	I would like to solicit your help in our continuing efforts to improve the quality of CIA analysis on South Asia. The Agency's National Foreign Assessment Center is looking for additional analysts with graduate training in South Asian studies for its office of Near East and South Asia Analysis. We have openings for men and women interested in contemporary political, economic, social, and military affairs. The positions require strong analytical skills and the ability to write straightforward prose and to brief senior officials. Us citizenship is a requirement. Applicants must pass medical and rigorous security screenings. The positions are in the Washington, D. C. area. Our analysts are open employees of the CIA. A graduate degree—or degrees—is highly desirable. Salary is negotiable, with factors such as education, training, work experience, language skills, etc., being taken into account. We normally hire a new Ph.D. with limited teaching experience at the GS-11 level—about $23,500 with this year's
I would like to solicit your help in our continuing efforts to improve the quality of CIA analysis on South Asia. The Agency's National Foreign Assessment Center is looking for additional analysts with graduate training in South Asian studies for its office of Near East and South Asia Analysis. We have openings for men and women interested in contemporary political, economic, social, and military affairs. The positions require strong analytical skills and the ability to write straightforward prose and to brief senior officials. Us citizenship is a requirement. Applicants must pass medical and rigorous security screenings. The positions are in the Washington, D. C. area. Our analysts are open employees of the CIA. A graduate degree—or degrees—is highly desirable. Salary is negotiable, with factors such as education, training, work experience, language skills, etc., being taken into account. We normally hire a new Ph.D. with limited teaching experience at the GS-11 level—about $23,500 with this year's	I would like to solicit your help in our continuing efforts to improve the quality of CIA analysis on South Asia. The Agency's National Foreign Assessment Center is looking for additional analysts with graduate training in South Asian studies for its office of Near East and South Asia Analysis. We have openings for men and women interested in contemporary political, economic, social, and military affairs. The positions require strong analytical skills and the ability to write straightforward prose and to brief senior officials. Us citizenship is a requirement. Applicants must pass medical and rigorous security screenings. The positions are in the Washington, D. C. area. Our analysts are open employees of the CIA. A graduate degree—or degrees—is highly desirable. Salary is negotiable, with factors such as education, training, work experience, language skills, etc., being taken into account. We normally hire a new Ph.D. with limited teaching experience at the GS-11 level—about $23,500 with this year's
I would like to solicit your help in our continuing efforts to improve the quality of CIA analysis on South Asia. The Agency's National Foreign Assessment Center is looking for additional analysts with graduate training in South Asian studies for its office of Near East and South Asia Analysis. We have openings for men and women interested in contemporary political, economic, social, and military affairs. The positions require strong analytical skills and the ability to write straightforward prose and to brief senior officials. Us citizenship is a requirement. Applicants must pass medical and rigorous security screenings. The positions are in the Washington, D. C. area. Our analysts are open employees of the CIA. A graduate degree—or degrees—is highly desirable. Salary is negotiable, with factors such as education, training, work experience, language skills, etc., being taken into account. We normally hire a new Ph.D. with limited teaching experience at the GS-11 level—about $23,500 with this year's	I would like to solicit your help in our continuing efforts to improve the quality of CIA analysis on South Asia. The Agency's National Foreign Assessment Center is looking for additional analysts with graduate training in South Asian studies for its office of Near East and South Asia Analysis. We have openings for men and women interested in contemporary political, economic, social, and military affairs. The positions require strong analytical skills and the ability to write straightforward prose and to brief senior officials. Us citizenship is a requirement. Applicants must pass medical and rigorous security screenings. The positions are in the Washington, D. C. area. Our analysts are open employees of the CIA. A graduate degree—or degrees—is highly desirable. Salary is negotiable, with factors such as education, training, work experience, language skills, etc., being taken into account. We normally hire a new Ph.D. with limited teaching experience at the GS-11 level—about $23,500 with this year's
I would like to solicit your help in our continuing efforts to improve the quality of CIA analysis on South Asia. The Agency's National Foreign Assessment Center is looking for additional analysts with graduate training in South Asian studies for its office of Near East and South Asia Analysis. We have openings for men and women interested in contemporary political, economic, social, and military affairs. The positions require strong analytical skills and the ability to write straightforward prose and to brief senior officials. Us citizenship is a requirement. Applicants must pass medical and rigorous security screenings. The positions are in the Washington, D. C. area. Our analysts are open employees of the CIA. A graduate degree—or degrees—is highly desirable. Salary is negotiable, with factors such as education, training, work experience, language skills, etc., being taken into account. We normally hire a new Ph.D. with limited teaching experience at the GS-11 level—about $23,500 with this year's	I would like to solicit your help in our continuing efforts to improve the quality of CIA analysis on South Asia. The Agency's National Foreign Assessment Center is looking for additional analysts with graduate training in South Asian studies for its office of Near East and South Asia Analysis. We have openings for men and women interested in contemporary political, economic, social, and military affairs. The positions require strong analytical skills and the ability to write straightforward prose and to brief senior officials. Us citizenship is a requirement. Applicants must pass medical and rigorous security screenings. The positions are in the Washington, D. C. area. Our analysts are open employees of the CIA. A graduate degree—or degrees—is highly desirable. Salary is negotiable, with factors such as education, training, work experience, language skills, etc., being taken into account. We normally hire a new Ph.D. with limited teaching experience at the GS-11 level—about $23,500 with this year's
The Agency's National Foreign Assessment Center is looking for additional analysts with graduate training in South Asian studies for its office of Near East and South Asia Analysis. We have openings for men and women interested in contemporary political, economic, social, and military affairs. The positions require strong analytical skills and the ability to write straightforward prose and to brief senior officials. US citizenship is a requirement. Applicants must pass medical and rigorous security screenings. The positions are in the Washington, D. C. area. Our analysts are open employees of the CIA. A graduate degreeor degreesis highly desirable. Salary is negotiable, with factors such as education, training, work experience, language skills, etc., being taken into account. We normally hire a new Ph.D. with limited teaching experience at the GS-11 levelabout $23,500 with this year's	The Agency's National Foreign Assessment Center is looking for additional analysts with graduate training in South Asian studies for its office of Near East and South Asia Analysis. We have openings for men and women interested in contemporary political, economic, social, and military affairs. The positions require strong analytical skills and the ability to write straightforward prose and to brief senior officials. US citizenship is a requirement. Applicants must pass medical and rigorous security screenings. The positions are in the Washington, D. C. area. Our analysts are open employees of the CIA. A graduate degreeor degreesis highly desirable. Salary is negotiable, with factors such as education, training, work experience, language skills, etc., being taken into account. We normally hire a new Ph.D. with limited teaching experience at the GS-ll levelabout $23,500 with this year's	Dear looking for additional analysts with graduate training in South Asian studies for its office of Near East and South Asia Analysis. We have openings for men and women interested in contemporary political, economic, social, and military affairs. The positions require strong analytical skills and the ability to write straightforward prose and to brief senior officials. US citizenship is a requirement. Applicants must pass medical and rigorous security screenings. The positions are in the Washington, D. C. area. Our analysts are open employees of the CIA. A graduate degreeor degreesis highly desirable. Salary is negotiable, with factors such as education, training, work experience, language skills, etc., being taken into account. We normally hire a new Ph.D. with limited teaching experience at the GS-11 levelabout $23,500 with this year's	looking for additional analysts with graduate training in South Asian studies for its office of Near East and South Asia Analysis. We have openings for men and women interested in contemporary political, economic, social, and military affairs. The positions require strong analytical skills and the ability to write straightforward prose and to brief senior officials. US citizenship is a requirement. Applicants must pass medical and rigorous security screenings. The positions are in the Washington, D. C. area. Our analysts are open employees of the CIA. A graduate degreeor degreesis highly desirable. Salary is negotiable, with factors such as education, training, work experience, language skills, etc., being taken into account. We normally hire a new Ph.D. with limited teaching experience at the GS-ll levelabout $23,500 with this year's ability to write straightforward prose and to brief senior officials. US citizenship is a requirement. Applicants must pass medical and rigorous security screenings. The positions are in the Washington, D. C. area. Our analysts are open employees of the CIA. A graduate degreeor degreesis highly desirable. Salary is negotiable, with factors such as education, training, work experience, language skills, etc., being taken into account. We normally hire a new Ph.D. with limited teaching experience at the GS-11 levelabout $23,500 with this year's	ability to write straightforward prose and to brief senior officials. US citizenship is a requirement. Applicants must pass medical and rigorous security screenings. The positions are in the Washington, D. C. area. Our analysts are open employees of the CIA. A graduate degreeor degreesis highly desirable. Salary is negotiable, with factors such as education, training, work experience, language skills, etc., being taken into account. We normally hire a new Ph.D. with limited teaching experience at the GS-11 levelabout $23,500 with this year's	looking for additional analysts with South Asian studies for its office of Asia Analysis. We have openings for in contemporary political, economic	h graduate training in of Near East and South r men and women interested
Salary is negotiable, with factors such as education, training, work experience, language skills, etc., being taken into account. We normally hire a new Ph.D. with limited teaching experience at the GS-11 levelabout $23,500 with this year's	Salary is negotiable, with factors such as education, training, work experience, language skills, etc., being taken into account. We normally hire a new Ph.D. with limited teaching experience at the GS-11 levelabout $23,500 with this year's	ability to write straightforward proofficials. US citizenship is a request pass medical and rigorous security are in the Washington, D. C. area.	ose and to brief senior uirement. Applicants must screenings. The positions
		Salary is negotiable, with factors work experience, language skills, exaccount. We normally hire a new Ph experience at the GS-11 levelabout	such as education, training, tc., being taken into .D. with limited teaching

Approved For Release 2005/07/14 : CIA-RDP86B00985D000100080011-2

	STA
In addition to looking for a new career employees, I also would enjoy talking to faculty members who are interested in learning about our scholar-in-residence program, consultants panel, or external research opportunities. In these areas we are looking for men and women with good records of research and publication. US citizenship is again a requirement.	STA
Office of Near East and South Asia Analysis National Foreign Assessment Center	